Special Programs Arranged for Final Entertainments—Pics Are Also Planned.

Special programs have been arranged for the final week of the Community Playgrounds. Parents of the children are invited to attend the various entertainments, for which there will be no admission charge.

The William and Olden Streets playground, directed by Marie Stoven and Joseph Richards, will have a motion picture show on Monday evening, when examples of craftwork and handwork done by the children attending that playground will be on exhibition. Folk and tap dancing also will be included in the program.

The Harrison Street playground, under the direction of Ruth Noble and Charles Dunham, will have a band concert on Tuesday afternoon at 3:30. The music will be furnished by the Emergency Relief Administration Band, with Gustave Hagedorn as Director. The hand craft work made by the children during the Summer will be on display.

BONTHRON VICTOR IN RACE WITH LOVELOCK IN PARIS

Princeton Athletes Qualify for National Amateur Golf Championship—Win in Tennis.

The victory of William R. Bonthron '34 over Jack Lovelock of Oxford in their fourth meeting on the cinder track and the qualification of seven Princetonians for the national amateur golf championship which begins at the country club of Brookline, Massachusetts, on September 10th, featured the competition of Princeton athletes this week.

Bonthron's triumph over Lovelock was especially noteworthy in that it came after three successive defeats by the slender Oxonian and in what the Princeton track captain had previously announced would be his final race. The meeting took place last Sunday in the Columbus Stadium at Paris, where the 1924 Olympic Games were held.

Running the brainiest race of his life, Bonthron beat his great rival by two yards over the 1,500 meter route, passing the New Zealander at the start of the straightaway and more than matching his celebrated finishing kick. Owing to a slow first half, the winning time of 3:57 was well behind the world record of 3:48 which Bonthron set for the distance last June.

Under the circumstances, a tense duel was to be expected, and few better-judged efforts than Bonthron's have ever been seen. There were ten runners in the race and Lovelock and Bonthron were almost the last off the mark. Each seemed to be waiting for the other, but Bonthron waited longer and let Lovelock make the pace.

By the time they had settled this argument some of the French runners were twenty yards ahead and any chance of record time was gone. With his beautiful, easy stride Lovelock began to pick up one after another of the field, and, keeping an even pace, he entered the last quarter-mile second, with Bonthron running in the pack about fifth.

Probably the New Zealander decided then that the race was his, for in their three previous meetings he had been quicker on the sprint than his American rival. He saved himself for the last one hundred yards, but Bonthron didn't give him a chance.

A full one hundred and thirty yards from the tape Bonthron suddenly surged out of the pack with a tremendous burst of speed. He reached Lovelock and passed him. The Oxford runner saw that it was too late to make his effort and, scarcely altering his pace, took second place, two yards behind the American, with Normand of France a distant third.

Bonthron also ran on the winning combination in the 1,600 meter relay, teaming with Bob Kane of Cornell, Ben Eastman of Stanford and Glen Hardin of Louisiana State to turn in the fast time of 3:14.8. Seven members of the picked American track team which has been touring Europe, including Bonthron, sailed yesterday for home on the Deutschland with a "boatload" of silverware amassed during their trip.

In addition to Dunlap, Dave Herron '18, American amateur champion in 1919, qualified automatically for this year's national title play. Four other Princetonians were among the one hundred and sixty seven who qualified via the eighteen district trials on Tuesday. T. Sufferin Tailor, Jr., '34, led the New England group by virtue of a scintillating 141, second lowest

NAZI CAMP LEADER SUMMONED TO APPEAR BEFORE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE ON INVESTIGATION

Camp Wille und Macht, Six Miles from Princeton, to End Four-Week Period on Sunday — Campers Wore Nazi Uniform and Conversed in German—Leader Haas Is German Citizen.

Camp Wille und Macht, the Nazi boys' camp, sponsored by the Friends of the New Germany and under the leadership of Hugo Haas of Brooklyn, on the banks of the Delaware and Raritan Canal near Griggstown, six miles north of here, which has caused a reopening of the Congressional investigation of Nazi propaganda in the United States, will end its four-week period of operation according to schedule on Sunday afternoon.

Haas and three of his assistants were examined in the American Bar Association Building in New York City yesterday by Representative Samuel Dickstein, head of the Congressional investigation committee, who declared at the conclusion of the hearing that the camp, maintained for boys of German descent, was a "mass alien movement" directed from Germany. "The committee," he continued, "considers as a direct affront the extension of the Nazi movement by the Friends of the New Germany in the establishment of boys camps. We have found by investigation that the Nazi Boy Scout camps are strictly out and out Hitler camps."

Mr. Dickstein revealed that he had made a secret visit to the camp to gather material for his committee, which has, he declared, received more than 2,000 letters of protest against the camp, one being from a Princeton man "of great prominence." The writers complained of goose-step marching and the singing of Nazi songs. "We have found too much goose-stepping and no saluting of the American flag," the Congressman continued. "They have a four-inch American flag, but the Nazi swastika flags are four feet long."

The committee—joint congressional body studying foreign propaganda in this country—has summoned Haas, Gregory Lochner, second in command at the camp, and Henry Woodhouse, historian of the Mt. Rushmore Exhibit. Mr. Dickstein did not explain the latter's connection with the investigation, but indicated it might be similar propaganda.

The Congressman indicated that the committee would also look into the financial backing for the camp. He said the committee has what it considers to be evidence that "some one in Germany has something to do with this movement." He produced a German magazine, "Die Gartenlaube,"

Dr. Harper Slightly Injured When Ship Encounters Storm

Dr. George M. Harper, Woodrow Wilson Professor of Literature, Emeritus, at Princeton University, was among the thirty passengers of the Anchor-liner Cameronia who were injured last week when the ship struck a terrific storm in crossing the Atlantic to Scotland. The steamer docked at Glasgow on Tuesday.

Professor Harper, who celebrated the 50th anniversary of his graduation from Princeton last June, was accompanied by Mrs. Harper, who incurred no injury. Dr. Harper received a minor cut over his right eyebrow, in spite of which he said he felt no alarm during the storm.

The gale struck the Cameronia on Thursday, and for two days the 16,297-ton liner battled against gigantic seas. Two 60-foot waves struck the ship on Friday, smashing boats and furniture, tearing tables from their fastenings and hurling passengers across the public rooms. The ship hove to and waited for eight hours for the gale to moderate. Passengers said that the vessel had listed at times at an angle of 35 degrees. A seaman on duty on the storm-torn deck was washed overboard during the seventy-mile gale and carried to death. The victim was Archibald MacDonald, twenty-four years old, who apparently was caught by a wave while working at the davits.

published in Berlin, showing a story dealing with the Jersey camp. "To prove our case," he declared, "we have subpoenaed E. Eisele, president of D. Westermann, Inc., who distributes all material dealing with present Germany, and who distributed copies of this magazine."

Meanwhile, with letters threatening the camp and its personnel arriving in every mail, sweeping investigation into activities there has been planned by the American Legion post of Somerset County, acting at the request of the Middlesex County Legionnaires, who have urged an "immediate inquiry into the activities of the Friends of the New Germany in this section." This allegedly pro-Nazi organization, which has branches all over the United States, is sponsoring the camp, the establishment of which the Middlesex Legionnaires consider "contrary to the principles of the Government of the United States."

Haas seemed undisturbed at the prospect of the investigation. "We have nothing to conceal," he declared yesterday. "We are merely teaching these boys to be good citizens, and there is no crime in that." He disclosed further that the camp would close at noon on Sunday, "not one minute before and not one minute after the time originally set for closing when we began four weeks ago."

In that period there have been marked changes in the conduct of the camp, which opened with the avowed purpose to reproduce in America the present conditions throughout Germany. At first a large swastika flag surmounted the thirty-foot flagpole at the center of the camp enclosure, while above the entrance to each of the eight large army tents in which the boys were housed were smaller swastika emblems. Throughout the waking hours of the camp a youth holding a staff six feet long stood watch in front of each tent, and this watch, or guard, changed several times a day, was part of a program of regimentation and camp discipline which included daily setting-up exercises, drill, marching maneuvers and all the other training ordinarily associated with Nazism.

The boys' regulation attire included the Nazi brown khaki shirt and black tie, as well as rubber-soled shoes, brown stockings rolled below the knees, and blue canvas shorts with white stripes down the sides. As Adolf Hitler is known in the camp as "Der Fuehrer," or "The Leader," and all conversation was carried on in German.

When, attracted by reports of these occurrences, outside visitors and newspaper correspondents went to the camp, Haas, who at 23 is already prominent in the Nazi circles of the metropolitan area, discussed his aims frankly. "There is only one leader, and that is Adolf Hitler," he asserted. "His ideas are our ideas, and his ideals are our ideals. "But we are not Nazis in the accepted sense of the word," Leader Haas continued, stressing at the same time that there was a misconception of the purpose of the Friends of the New Germany. "We are exactly what our name implies, friends of a new-found order in the Fatherland."

FREDERICK G. SIKES DIES IN NEW ENGLAND HOSPITAL

Mr. Frederick G. Sikes, Sr., died at the Farmington Hospital, Farmington, Maine, following an emergency operation on Sunday. He had been in ill health for several years.

Funeral services were held in Buffalo, New York, Mr. Sikes' former home, on Tuesday. Interment took place in Buffalo.

Mr. Sikes, whose home in Princeton was on Battle Road West, went with Mrs. Sikes, to Franconia, New Hampshire, early in July. They remained in Franconia until the early part of August when they left for Belgrade Lakes, Maine, to spend the remainder of the Summer. His son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon G. Sikes, returned two weeks ago from their wedding trip to Europe and last week went to Belgrade Lakes to join his parents.

he declared. "Nazism is only a part of that new order."

Two days following, when he realized how much publicity his camp was receiving and how widely his remarks had been disseminated, Haas was more temperate and strove to endow his purposes with a more peaceful significance.

"The regulation brown shirt camp uniform has no connection with the Brown Shirts of Germany," he asserted in response to one question, and when asked what his revised aims were said: "We teach these boys the fundamentals of true citizenship, self-reliance and obedience. We teach them to speak the language of their mother country and to sing the songs their fathers loved to sing in their youth."

The boys still gathered nightly around the camp fire to sing German songs and hear German stories, it was disclosed, and the orders for the day, posted each morning on the camp bulletin board, were still written entirely in German. But the small swastikas over each tent had disappeared and the large central flag had been hauled down a few feet, where it shared a place of honor with the American Stars and Stripes.

The most fruitful line of inquiry, however, seemed to be to ascertain what was a Nazi supporter's conception of "the fundamentals of true citizenship." Herr Haas was eager to oblige on that score. His aim was to teach the boys under him to live clean lives. "American citizens, especially those in the larger towns and cities, are too apt to practice graft and corruption," he declared. "We seek to cure that condition, even as the Nazis have eliminated it in Germany."

"We have no desire to use force to achieve this end," he continued, referring to the Friends of the New Germany organization which is sponsoring the camp. "Instead, we are using education. We have here boys from four great cities—New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Buffalo—and we are teaching them in the principles they should follow."

"True, we lay stress on the German language and customs in our camp routine," he added, "but these boys are of Teutonic stock, and it is

NEW JERSEY INDUSTRIES TO OPERATE UNDER ONE CODE

Single Code Assessment Arranged at Conference Between Moore and Johnson in Capital.

Single code administration and single collection of code assessments will replace the present duplication of national and State authorities for most New Jersey industry and business, as a result of the conference between Governor A. Harry Moore and General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA Administrator, held in Washington on Tuesday.

The single administrative program will be put into effect for all business which has both federal and State supervision. Only purely intra-State business not covered by any NRA code will be permitted separate State administration and assessments.

The program will accordingly meet one of the major objections made to the New Jersey code administration—that of duplicate administrative assessments which in many instances equal or exceed NRA assessments. Instead of the $750,000 administrative cost for State codes, the new program will operate, it is indicated, at a greatly reduced figure.

In the end this will benefit the consumer, in the opinion of NRA officials, for the administrative costs are passed on to the consumer.

The joint Federal and State program will be put into effect when the New Jersey Legislature is called upon next month to enact a revision of the State Recovery Act, under which State codes are administered. The present law will be changed radically and the State codes, their administration and assessment costs will be subordinated to or absorbed by the Federal program. State codes will be applicable only to businesses that do not cross State lines.

Price fixing under the new act will be subordinated also to NRA policies. Final details of this phase of the recovery program have not yet been settled, but it is considered certain that the present prices for some New Jersey commodities that exceed those of Pennsylvania and New York in the same marketing areas will be reduced to the same level.

A victory for New Jersey, however, was seen in General Johnson's announcement that the State Recovery Administration will not be precluded from incorporating provisions in State codes which give due regard to local conditions on subjects which are not covered by provisions of national codes.

The pronouncement was made by General Johnson yesterday in giving out the details of the agreement effected in his conference with Governor Moore and other State officials, including Harry L. Tepper, Acting Administrator for the State Recovery Act; John J. Toohy, Jr., State Labor Commissioner, and J. Raymond Tiffany, Assistant Attorney General.

The Governor and Mr. Toohy left Washington Tuesday night after accord was reached on the general principles of the coordinated program, while Tepper and Tiffany remained in Washington to work out its details with Robert K. Straus, special assistant to General Johnson. When the plan is in final shape it will be submitted to the Governor and Attorney General Wilentz.

The text of Johnson's announcement follows: "We welcome," he said, "the assumption by the State of New Jersey to complete responsibility with reference to the presentation, approval, administration and enforcement of State codes of fair competition affecting those local service industries and

FARLEY TO ADDRESS DEMOCRATIC RALLY

Reception and Rally Arranged in Honor of Governor Moore and Judge Dill at Sea Girt.

STATE COMMITTEE TO HAVE LUNCHEON IN SPRING LAKE

Moore-Dill Veterans League Will Send Large Delegation—Radio Stars to Give Program.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, will come to New Jersey tomorrow to deliver the principal address at the Democratic Rally to be held at Sea Girt. Other speakers will be Governor A. Harry Moore, candidate for United States Senator; Judge William L. Dill, candidate for Governor; and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

A reception in honor of the Senatorial and gubernatorial candidates and a review of troops will precede the speaking. The speakers' stand has been erected on the parade ground, and amplifiers will carry the speeches to the entire assemblage.

Congresswoman Mary T. Norton, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, will preside at a luncheon at the New Monmouth Hotel in Spring Lake at noon. Those attending will be the members of the State Committee and County Chairmen, County leaders, co-leaders and active organization members of the Democratic party in New Jersey.

While the luncheon is in progress the crowds arriving at Sea Girt will be entertained by vaudeville and radio stars, and by the bands accompanying the various county delegations.

Fifteen thousand members of the Moore-Dill Veterans League are expected to march in review before the speakers' stand. They will wear their overseas uniforms, and will be accompanied by gaily uniformed bandsmen.

Forty trains have been chartered to convey the Hudson County delegation to Sea Girt. Every County in the State will be represented at the rally. Plans are being made to accommodate an even larger crowd than that which greeted President Roosevelt in 1932.

COMMITTEE ASKS FOR $2500 TO IMPROVE TOWNSHIP ROAD

Requests Freeholders to Approropriate That Amount from Road Maintenance Fund.

A resolution to improve the Rocky Hill-Mount Rose Road was passed at a special meeting of the Princeton Township Committee held in the Township Hall on Monday afternoon to handle various road matters.

By the terms of the resolution, the township requests the Mercer County Board of Freeholders to set up the sum of $2,500 from the fund for the maintenance and repair of unimproved Township roads to construct a two-inch tread on one section and a five-inch macadam foundation and two-inch tread on another section of the road between Rocky Hill and Mount Rose, the plans and specifications for the improvement to be approved by the Mercer County Engineer.

Two motions concerning this project were also carried, the first providing for the acceptance of the bid for furnishing and applying tar to the road at a price of 14¢ per gallon, presented by the Tar Distribution Corporation, and the second accepting Frank Zuppardi's bid of $711.30 to furnish and deliver the necessary stone.

It was voted to make an application to the State Highway Commission for permission to transfer the surplus funds from the Birch Avenue, Race Street and John Street projects, amounting in all to $618.71, to the Moore Street undertaking.

NAZIISM IN AMERICA

Patriotic citizens in this section have no doubt found it disquieting to learn that a Nazi boys' camp, sponsored by the Friends of the New Germany, had been established six miles from Princeton on the Delaware and Raritan Canal, Camp Wille und Macht it is called, signifying "will and might"

Hugo Haas, "Der Fuehrer", as he is known in the camp, is not a naturalized citizen of this country, according to reports, although he has lived in America fourteen years, coming from Germany at the age of nine. He has been the leader here of 200 boys between the ages of eight and sixteen—boys who, in a few years, will be given every privilege of American citizenship. At Camp Wille und Macht they have been taught, says Haas, "to speak the language of their mother country and to sing the songs their fathers loved to sing in their youth". It would be better if they learned to speak well the language of the country which has given sanctuary to them and their parents.

When the camp was first opened, a program of regimentation and camp discipline was established which was in keeping with the avowed purpose of the leader to inculcate in the boys the ideals promulgated by Adolf Hitler. "His ideas are our ideas, and his ideals are our ideals," said Haas.

The swastika, the Nazi emblem, flew over the camp and the uniform worn by the boys included the brown shirt of Hitler's followers. All conversation was carried on in German and at night the boys gathered around the camp fire to hear German songs and German stories.

In the weeks that have followed the opening of the camp, newspaper correspondents have made repeated visits there and, due to the publicity it has received, Herr Haas deemed it advisable to tone down its military aspects.

A sub-committee of the Congressional Investigating Committee, of which Representative Samuel Dickstein of New York is Chairman, has subpoenaed Herr Haas in its investigation of Nazi activities in this country. Mr. Dickstein, who is also Chairman of the Committee on Immigration, has charged that foreign governments are spending large amounts of money on propaganda in this country.

The Somerset County Legionnaires have announced their purpose of making an inquiry into the activities of the Friends of the New Germany in this vicinity. If the policy of the organization does not run counter to the fundamental principles upon which the American Government was founded, Camp Wille und Macht should welcome the investigation.

The choice of a site for the camp near Princeton, a shrine of American liberty, was inappropriate. Here was fought the battle which has been called the decisive conflict in the War for Independence. Here Washington came after the long struggle was over, to rest from his labors and to receive the thanks of Congress, convened in Nassau Hall. In the century and a half that have elapsed since that memorable day, thousands of boys have gone out to serve the nation in war and in peace. On the marble walls of Memorial Hall are inscribed the names of those who fell on the battlefield in defence of the ideals which "Der Fuehrer" scorns.

Herr Haas, it is said, has declared his intention of establishing all-year camps for the training of German-American youth, but not in this section where, in his opinion, there are "far too many reporters". The German immigrant will find that there is no place in America he can go where he will not be followed by newspaper correspondents if he persists in a determination to breed Nazism in this country. The American press is always on sentinal duty—its vigilance is never relaxed.

SAYS STERZL IS ELIGIBLE

Elderkin Incorrectly Interprets Postmaster News Stories.

TO THE PRINCETON HERALD: Recent references in THE PRINCETON HERALD and the Trenton Times to the candidates for the postmastership at Princeton would lead one to believe that Assistant Postmaster Sterzl could not be named for the position. This information is entirely incorrect. The fact is that anyone already in the competitive civil service is not required to take an examination for the position of postmaster but can be named from among the candidates if the Postmaster General so desires. Assistant Postmaster Sterzl is not barred from candidacy for the position but since he is already in the competitive civil service his name did not appear upon the questionnaires recently sent out by the United States Civil Service Commission.

G. W. ELDERKIN. [THE PRINCETON HERALD stated in its issue of August 17th that "if the Postmaster General believes there is no suitable person among the applicants for the office, he might exercise his first option and appoint Mr. Sterzl".

The following is an excerpt from the Executive Order issued July 12, 1933, which was sent to THE PRINCETON HERALD by the United States Civil Service Commission for publication in connection with the announcement of its open competitive examination. It appeared in the issue of July 6th.

"When a vacancy exists or occurs in the position of postmaster at an office of the first, second or third class, the Postmaster General may submit to the President for renomination the name of the postmaster whose term has expired or is about to expire, or the name of some qualified person within the competitive classified civil service. If no such person is nominated the Postmaster General shall certify the fact to the Civil Service Commission which shall forthwith hold an open competitive examination to test the fitness of applicants not in either of the above-mentioned classes to fill such vacancy.

CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE SUMMONS NAZI LEADER HAAS

right that they should know and love the Fatherland, for the United States and its inhabitants can learn much from Germany."

When asked what, specifically, America could learn from the Nazis, Leader Haas declared that they could learn from the Germans how to train their youngsters better. "More practical things should be taught in the schools and better teachers should be obtained to teach them," he continued. "Their physical development is also neglected.

"And America as a whole could and should learn the spirit of equality, of true democracy from Nazi Germany. Years ago we had many different classes in the Fatherland, and justice was often a mockery. We are not advocating a one-class State, such as the Communists have developed in Russia, where all are proletariats. Instead, we seek in America, as we have achieved in Germany, a society whose every man can choose his own means of living and yet will not, if he proves more fortunate than other people, stick up his nose at them. He will rather help them along as best he can.

"In this camp, we are trying to carry out these principles. Every boy, no matter how rich or how poor his parents, pays the same rate—$2 a week, believe it or not—and all are treated in exactly the same way. The boys are learning to consider each other brothers, and not until that is the case throughout the United States can citizenship here achieve the heights it has in Germany."

This fee of $2 a week, however, barely pays for the food which each boy eats, prepared in open kitchens by two buxom German women. Leader Haas, however, is believed to have obtained substantial "contributions" from the parents of his charges. The rental for the property on which the camp is situated was $75 for the four weeks. The property is owned by Dr. John Acken, a physician whose homestead adjoins the camp ground.

Leader Haas' contention that the camp routine was no more strenuous than that of the average Boy Scout camp, which he insists it resembles, has apparently not been borne out by the facts. For by the middle of last week the original enrollment of 200 had dropped below 120. The "will and might" which the camp's name signifies was evidently weakening. According to Haas, these boys left the camp because they had become homesick, but from other sources it was learned that many had departed because their parents objected to the undue amount of Nazi regimentation, which is part and parcel of the daily camp life.

Meanwhile the discipline of the camp had obviously been relaxed somewhat. No longer did boys with staffs stand guard over each tent; the Nazi brown shirts had been discarded, with most of the boys attired simply in shorts and sneakers; and the march in military formation from the site of one activity to the next had been abandoned. The large swastika flag which had originally flown from the top of the central flagpole had disappeared completely.

On one point, however, Herr Haas stood firm. The "war game" would be conducted in full the following Sunday, which was to be Parents' Day. Two special railroad cars were being chartered to bring them down from New York, while many members of the Friends of the New Germany would also be present to see this culmination of the camp's activities.

The "war game" had been enthusiastically described by Leader Haas at the start of the camp season. Two "armies" or boys were to be trained to conduct a sham battle with attacks and counter-attacks and with simulated machine gun and rifle firing. An elaborate schedule of sports and maneuvers would complete the program.

Last Sunday was the appointed gala day of activity. Five hundred German-American thronged the sun-baked grounds and participated in the festivities. In honor of the occasion, the swastika put in an appearance; after having been banished from public view for a fortnight. The German and American flags hung side by side above the main entrance to the central area, while surmounting them both was the familiar Nazi emblem.

Smaller duplicates appeared elsewhere, but the Stars and Stripes still had the place of honor at the top of the central flagpole, though even above it was the wooden symbol of the lightning-flash, the official sign of the Nazi boys' organization, the Jungschaft. This symbol also appeared on the sleeves of the boy campers, who had again donned their brown shirts.

The large swastika flag was nowhere in evidence, however, until THE PRINCETON HERALD correspondent, curious to see what the interior of the boys' tents looked like, stepped into one at random. There was the large black banner, with a white silk swastika embroidered upon it, attached to a fresh pole and apparently ready for use later. The next tent entered had a photograph of Hitler pinned to its central pole, while a third displayed prominently the German marching song of the Friends of the New Germany.

But the "war game" had been abandoned because of the wide publicity which it had received, Haas explained. In its place, a circus performance was presented by the boys including humorous German songs and comic skits. The speeches of the performers were all in German, and the whole was climaxed by a German address by Haas, who, although he has lived in this country since the age of 14, has not been naturalized.

Athletic contests, including running, swimming, broad jumping, javelin throwing and shot putting, began in the morning and continued throughout the day, with groups of boys from each of the tents competing in these events for the camp championship. The running events were conducted in a recently-plowed cornfield, with the furrowed mounds forming imaginary running lanes.

letic contests, the 120 campers marched from the site of one event to the next in squad formation, using the goose step and marching to the beat of a drum. As they did so, they usually sang the German songs they have learned, one of them being a paean in praise of Hitler.

Some of the adult German visitors to the camp expressed considerable criticism over the investigations of alleged Nazi activities being conducted by a United States Congressional committee headed by Representative Samuel Dickstein. One such visitor, who would not reveal his name, declared that the Jews in this country are "persecuting" the American Nazis, and added that jealousy is the motive behind their investigations. Representative Dickstein, who is chairman of the committee on Immigration, has charged that foreign governments are spending large amounts of money on propaganda in this country.

"We are Americans," this visitor said, "but we are descendants of the Fatherland. As such, we have a perfect right to display the German flags. We cannot display our national flag without the Nazi emblem, and that's the reason the Jews in this country are behind these investigations. They have no national flag, and when we put up two it makes them jealous."

An article from the "New York Mirror" about the camp, which included a picture of Congressman Dickstein, was posted on the bulletin board. The paper was intact, save for that section on which Mr. Dickstein's head appeared, where it was roughly gouged out. When asked the significance of this, Leader Haas grinned and said, "Your New Jersey mosquitoes have shown poorer taste than usual in what to eat."

Haas has been deluged with letters concerning the camp since it opened. Most of them denounce its activities, declaring that its sponsors should go back to Germany if that is the way they feel, but many praise the movement highly, and several have contained checks to help it along.

The Griggstown camp is only the starting point of a nation-wide program to establish all-year camps for German-American youth, where boys and girls will be trained physically under strict discipline and at the same time be imbued with the new ideals of the German fatherland, Haas revealed in announcing that the camp would close according to schedule on Sunday.

Under the auspices of the Friends of the New Germany, which has branches throughout the United States, the camps will be the nucleus of a youth movement in this country, paralleling that in Germany, which, on the crest of its enthusiasm, swept Hitler into power. The Jungschaft and the Maedchenschaft will be the names of the young men's and the young women's groups, respectively. Negotiations are already under way for the purchase of a tract of about 200 acres in New York State as the headquarters of the metropolitan branches of the youth groups. Haas, who is national leader of the boys' group, revealed. Properties will also be acquired in other parts of the United States for a similar purpose he said.

"I hope to have a thousand boys next year," he concluded. "But not in this section. There's too much poison ivy around here—and far too many reporters."

Christian Science Service

"Mind" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "Who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever" (Romans 11:34, 36).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord; neither are there any works like unto thy works. All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord; and shall glorify thy name" (Psalms 86:8, 9).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mind, supreme over all its formations and governing them all, is the central sun of its own systems of ideas, the life and light of all its own vast creation; and man is tributary to divine Mind" (p. 209).

Holy Communion will be celebrated at Trinity Church on Sunday morning at 7:30. Morning prayer and the sermon will be at 10, and evening prayer at 5.

In Good Times and Bad Electric Rates Were Cut

No other item in the household budget gives so much for so little as electricity.

In boom times, Mary, when money was easier to get and most people had jobs, the prices of food and clothing and most other things we needed went skyrocketing. Our rent was higher, amusement prices jumped and we paid much more for almost everything we bought."

"Not so with electricity, Fred, and the fact is that our rate for electricity, instead of going up in the boom period, actually went down."

Electricity is one of the few commodities that did not advance during the last inflation period.

As President Thomas N. McCarter of Public Service Electric and Gas Company said in his recent argument in the electric rate case before the Board of Public Utility Commissioners:

"The whole principle of regulation rests upon the theory that, because of the peculiar nature of the business, operating utilities shall always be limited to a fair return upon the value of the property devoted to the public use. They are not like the ordinary industrial concerns that are unlimited as to profit, and in good times can lay up proper surpluses with which to meet depressions like the present. Conversely the principle is just as deep-rooted that, as they are limited in earnings in good times, so they shall be protected in earnings in poor times."

In 1933, the average monthly bill paid by approximately 700,000 domestic consumers in Public Service territory was $2.80—less than 10 cents a day.

When the Fifth U. S. Census was taken in 1830, four years before the founding of "The Princeton Bank," the total population of the country was only 12,866,020, little more than is now concentrated in our three largest cities, New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia.

In 1834 just a few pages in an ordinary ledger sufficed for the personal signatures of depositors of this bank. To-day our signature card file lists thousands of residents of Princeton and vicinity. Why not make this century-old, forward-looking bank your banking headquarters this year?

SMART used car buyers are turning to the larger cars. The logic of this is obvious.
In times of economic stress we are apt to think of immediate cost only, i. e., gas, oil, license, etc., and forget long life and freedom from repairs. Thus the demand for small used cars has greatly inflated their price and abnormally reduced the price of fine used cars, until the larger car actually,
in most cases, represents a smaller cost per mile of probable usefulness than the light
car. The prices quoted below prove our argu-

trades covered by the Executive Orders of May 26th and June 28th,
such as the cleaning and dyeing,
laundry, barber, beauty shop, and shoe rebuilding industries and trades, etc. Such action is consistent with the policy of the National Recovery Administration in the matter of service industries and trades.

"With reference to other codes of fair competition not affected by the Executive Orders of May 26th and June 28th, it has been agreed that the provisions of the State codes shall not differ from those incorporated in the corresponding national codes. All applications received by the State Recovery Administration for modifications, interpretations, or any other form of action or order under State codes shall be submitted concurrently
to the National Recovery Administration for consideration with reference to the corresponding national code.
The disposition of such applications
under the State codes will be made consistent with the disposition accorded under the national codes.

"It is understood, however, that industries and trades in New Jersey will not be precluded from incorporating provisions in State codes which give due regard to local conditions and customs, on subjects which are not covered by provisions in national codes."
It was the last point that constitu-ed the main difference between the State and national administrations.
Several weeks ago General Johnson wrote Governor Moore that State codes must be made identical with national codes. The meeting was a result of this letter, for Governor Moore replied that the matter was of too great importance to handle by correspondence and asked the conference.

The State law creating the State Recovery Administration had stated that "due regard must be given to local conditions and customs." On all other points the conferees agreed before going into conference that they were virtually in accord.

"The National Recovery Administration," General Johnson continued,
"will be glad to receive the suggestions of the New Jersey Recovery Administration with reference to any amendments to national codes."
"With reference to provisions which affect prices," said Johnson, touching on another point of difference, "it is further understood that Governor Moore agrees to eliminate existing inconsistencies in order to facilitate complete cooperation between the State and National Recovery Administrations.

"In order to assure harmony in the future any applications for price protection additional to that effective under the corresponding National code will be required to be made by the industry requesting the same to both the National and State Recovery Administrations. The State Administration will not rule upon the application with reference to the State
code until the National Recovery Administration has ruled upon the application with reference to the national code."
New Jersey is protected from possible inaction on the part of the NRA in this provision; however, by the agreement that "in the event that the National Recovery Administration denies the application or does not act
within thirty days, the State Recovery Administration shall take such action as it sees fit in respect to the State code."
"To eliminate duplication," Johnson concluded, "in code authority organization and expenses incident thereto,
the same group of industry representatives shall be recognized as the State code authority under the State

COMMUNITY PLAYGROUNDS TO END SEASON NEXT WEEK

Just prior to the interview with General Johnson, Tepper said a recent legislative inquiry into the operation of State codes showed there was a reasonable demand for the State administration, but it was the State's intention "to cooperate in every way possible with the NRA."
"The nineteen State codes have been formulated according to State law which provides the State can have codes consistent with National codes,
but giving due regard to local conditions."
"We are in accord in most instances with the NRA and have been all along. The meetings today are to determine a policy for the future rather than to settle a current dispute. The question is merely one of whether every State code shall be identical with a similar national code or follow
the dictates of the State Legislature,
and give due regard to local conditions."
"Our service codes, about which there has been so much discussion, are identical with those of the NRA and prices are fixed following approval of eighty-five per cent of an industry.
There are but two exceptions to this and they are in formula only. Our formula for fixing retail coal prices differs from the national method and in the retail grocery code instead of having cost or replacement, whichever is lower, as the basis for price-fixing we have selected the prevailing market price as being fairer. The State and national recovery code permits a two per cent mark-up of wholesale and six per cent mark-up in retail prices."

Tepper said there was no conflict between State and NRA codes, either in administration or in the collections from code members for administrative costs. He said an accord has been reached for a single collection of administrative taxes and for a single administrative authority where there was overlapping.
"There is no encroaching of a State code on NRA territory," Tepper asserted, "and there have been no proven cases of State codes causing seepage of business."

dispute and returned to Washington
that night to lay the matter before the National Labor Board. Pending the decision, he advised the men to continue work at their previous wages.
No word as to the outcome has yet been received from Washington.
The strike was called when officials of the Slonk Construction Corporation,
of Elizabeth, the contractors, refused to pay more than $1 an hour for work on the project. The union men had demanded $1.20 on the grounds that the reconstruction of the front of the building, which had to be torn down, is new work, and should be paid for
at the new rate. After the walkout, the construction firm hired non-union men, who carried on until Monday.

district qualifiers at the Ridgewood Country Club. John D. Ames '28
qualified in the Chicago district.

Wilson F. Marks '35, was third among the qualifiers at Pittsburgh,
while two other Princeton athletes
barely missed qualification at Ridge-

Gloves in the heavyweight boxing division, and Albert L. Schomp, Jr.,

the qualifying limit being 158.

At the national tennis doubles tournament, being conducted at the Germantown Cricket Club this week, John Van Ryn '28 and his long-time partner, Wilmer Allison, have reached the final round, where they will meet the defending champions, George Lott and Lester Stoefen. Van Ryn and Allis-

also former Davis Cup and Wimbledon doubles champions, and on Sunday defeated Stoefen and Lott in the

in the second round to the veteran combination of Dr. Carl Fischer and William Lingelbach, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.
Berkeley Bell and Gregory Mangin, Lott and Stoefen's opponents in the semi-final, were extended to four sets in the first round by the hard-fighting combination of William T. Tilden, III,

6-2, 6-4, while E. Harlan Whitehead

An Outmoded Conveyance

The old carry-all which carried passengers between Princeton, Lawrenceville and Trenton fifty years ago, when Dobbin was King of the Highway. The horse-drawn street car replaced the carry-all.
Later, Dobbin was sent to pasturage and the trolley car made its appearance. Recently the Trenton-Princeton Traction Company made application for the modification of its franchise, since the motor bus
has made its passenger service unprofitable.

The picture reproduced above
has been submitted in the Old Pictures Contest that is being arranged by the Princeton Bank and Trust Company as a feature of its centennial celebration to be held in the Autumn.
